Other interesting features include the new lifeboat station, a medieval fortified residence known as the Tower House, a dovecote and unique colonial style houses.
Pembroke: S, PO, R, B, A, I, PT, T, CP, SP, RS. The historic walled town of Pembroke is perhaps most famous for its magnificent castle, birthplace of Henry VII. Main Street is the ideal place to potter amongst craft and antique shops, cafes, restaurants and pubs.
Castlemartin: PO, R, PT. Castlemartin is a tiny hamlet, once famous for its Castlemartin Welsh Black Cattle. Today an early 18th century circular stone cattle pound in the heart of the village serves as a traffic roundabout.

Bosherston: R, A, PT, T, CP. Bosherston is famous for its lily ponds, but is also home to 14th century St Michael's Church. The village gives access to Broad Haven beach and (when the MOD tank range is not in use) to St Goven's Head and Chapel.
Stackpole: R, PT, T, CP. Stackpole village was moved from its original medieval site in 1735 to accommodate the growing Stackpole Estate. The present day inn occupies a building of 16th century origin, and nearby are interesting areas of woodland and Stackpole Quay. Haverfordwest: S, PO, R, B, A, I, PT, T, CP, SP, RS. Haverfordwest's medieval castle and Norman churches illustrate the early history of the town. In 1648 Cromwell ordered the castle slighted and that Haverfordwest replace Pembroke as county town, a role it holds to this day. Once a flourishing port the riverside quay is today part of Haverfordwest's busy shopping area, which extends through the town. Haverfordwest's 13th century Augustinian Priory has recently been excavated and includes the only surviving medieval garden in Britain.

Broad Haven: S, PO, R, A, I, PT, T, CP, SP. The beautiful beach at Broad Haven has attracted visitors since the early 19th century. During that period bathing machines (wooden huts on wheels) could be found on the beach to provide private shelter for well to do bathers to change. The village also has an industrial background collapsed coal mines can be seen in the cliffs on the north side of the beach.

St Brides: PT, T, CP. The name St Brides most likely derives from St Brigid of Kildare (late 5th early 6th centuries). There are graves lined with stone in a cemetery near the beach. The church at St Brides is medieval but may have been built on the site of an earlier chapel.

Johnston: S, PO, R, B, PT, SP, RS. A small but busy community, Johnston grew up around the railway station in the 19th century.

Neyland: S, R, B, T. Neyland town was largely designed by Brunel, and built by South Wales Railways in the 1850's. The quay was once the terminus from which railway passengers and goods set off across the Atlantic. Today, the area is occupied by a marina and industrial units.
